YUGO-SLAV KING AND FRENCH CABINET MEMBER ARE SLAIN

Here and There

Editorial By ALEX. H. WASHBURN

THE assassination in France today of the Yugo-Slav king by one of his own subjects is a terse reply to foolish citizens of whatever land who think radical action is a cure for governmental ills.

Will Green Case Approaches Jury in Circuit Court

Testimony Is Taken Monday Afternoon, Tuesday Morning

R. MONROE IS NEXT

His Trial Will Complete Blevins Bank Robbery Probe

The case of Will Green, Texarkana, on trial for the robbery of the Bank of Blevins, approached the jury late Tuesday afternoon in Hempstead circuit court at Washington. Witnesses occupied the stand Monday afternoon and Tuesday morning, and attorneys began their closing arguments. Roger Monroe, under indictment in the same case, is expected to follow Green into court as soon as the latter's case is completed. Bert Waddell, third suspect, pleaded guilty Monday, his sentence to be pronounced later. "Lost in the Bank of Blevins robbery totaled $300."

Grand Jury Will Probe Ballot Box

Kitchens-Parks Contest to Be Heard at Hamburg Next Monday

HAMBURG, Ark.—(AP)—Floyd Walker, chairman of an Ashley county Citizens Committee named at a recent mass meeting to seek action against persons who tampered with ballot boxes, said Monday night that Circuit Judge Patrick Henry had promised the delegation he would order a grand jury investigation of the disappearance of ballots following the August 28 primary. When the Ashley county ballot boxes were opened a few weeks ago by court order in an effort to decide the Wade Kitchens-Timman B. Parks congressional election contest, poll books, tally sheets and ballots were found missing from nearly all the boxes. Walker said Judge Henry told a committee of nearly 50 citizens who called on him at Monticello Monday that he would charge the Ashley county grand jury which convenes here next week to conduct a diligent investigation into the disappearance of the ballots. Walker said Judge Henry agreed to a suggestion that all civil cases be disposed of before the grand jury meets. Court is scheduled to convene Monday and the civil cases are expected to require two days or more. The Kitchens-Parks election contest is set for hearing the first day of court. Parks was given the Democratic nomination for congress on the face of official returns from the eleven counties of the Seventh district, by a margin of 14,065 votes to 13,774 for Kitchens. Walker said the citizens committee asked Judge Henry to use every means to help run down the persons who rifled the county ballot boxes, and pledged their support. Judge Henry assured the citizens of his appreciation of the spirit in which they were seeking election justice and promised that he would do all in his power. Walker said Judge Henry promised he would charge the grand jury to make a thorough investigation and return indictments where evidence warranted such action.

Hinton Pie Supper
A pie supper and musical program will be held Saturday night at Hinton church, proceeds to be contributed to the pastor's salary.

From 1855 to 1930, the play "Uncle Tom's Cabin" was showing somewhere in America, giving it the longest continuous run of any production. Sparrows do an annual damage of many millions of dollars to the buildings of the world.

Yugo-Slavia, a consolidation of the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes, has been a hotbed of trouble ever since its founding in 1921. King Alexander, a strong and resourceful ruler, handled his nation's domestic affairs but leaned on the French for protection abroad.

He was in France in the interests of his native land when fellow Yugo-Slavs killed him.

The same assassins that down Louis Barthou, Foreign Minister of France (corresponding to our Secretary of State Cordell Hull)—and that won't help the Yugo-Slav cause in the minds of the French peasants.

Thus do the friends of violent action kill the country they profess to help.

X X X
With assassinations in the Balkans and civil war in Spain, America has this to be thankful for.

We put our trust neither in men nor in parties, but in broad principles of democratic government which we call the Constitution.

And if at times our country seems to have more than its share of troubles we need only to look abroad to see that patience and not violent action is the final answer to humanity's ills.

When our country was founded Benjamin Franklin said: "There is no form of government but what may be a blessing to the people if well administered."

Assassins and revolutionaries are not patriots; they are not courageous; they are not helpful—they are the dumb ones, for they fail to see that whenever a radical action is begun, another is sure to meet it; and chaos results.

That's how America looks on Yugo-Slavia today.

Price-Fixing May Be Up to President

Revamping of NRA Discussed by F. D. R. and Recovery Board

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—The problem of reshaping the NRA was put directly up to President Roosevelt Monday, in a list of problems, including price and production control, submitted to him by his Recovery Board. The list was known to emphasize the question of code compliance, the heart of NRA's partnership with industry. These issues and others of less importance were canvassed in a 50-minute White House conference, the first between Mr. Roosevelt and the board. A second conference was forecast within a week.

Clay Williams, board chairman, commented:

"The president invited us over to spend a little time with him, reporting on what we had done. We told him the first week was devoted entirely to a survey of our problems. The discussion developed a few generalities as to what broadly was included in these problems."

Williams replied to questions that price and production control were mentioned but "there was no indication where the study may lead."

Hugh S. Johnson, retiring administrator, remained in his office during the White House meeting. Later, Williams conferred with him.

Bandits Hold Up Cafe in Prescott and Escape Here

Ebb's Restaurant Robbed of $50—Wild Chase to Hope Follows

BUT TRAIL IS LOST

Officers Find Texas Car Abandoned Near Hope Basket Factory

Two bandits held up and robbed Ebb's cafe at Prescott of $50 Monday night and escaped after a wild chase that started at Prescott and ended at Hope Basket factory with Nevada and Hempstead county officers in pursuit.

The bandits, both entering the cafe with drawn revolvers, held up the cashier and escaped in a Ford V-8 sedan. The robber car headed out of Prescott toward Hope with Nevada officers in hot pursuit.

In the meantime Hope officers were notified. Chief of Police Clarence Baker with Officers Burke and Reeves drove to the double turn at Third and Shover streets where they waited.

They See Officers
As the bandit car approached the driver immediately spotted the officers, whipped the car north on Shover and then left on East Second, continuing at high speed through the downtown section to South Harvey where he almost overturned in an attempt to round the corner.

However, the car stood up and continued to the end of South Harvey. There the bandits abandoned the car, escaping on foot toward the Hope Basket factory. Officers fired three times at the fleeing men, but none of the bullets took effect.

Hempstead and Nevada officers, with the aid of blood hounds, continued the search until after midnight but found no trace of the robbers.

Identity of one of the bandits was believed established Tuesday through a letter found in the car. Officers withheld the name. The letter was postmarked from Houston and sent to Longview, Texas.

The car bore a Texas license. An attempt is being made to determine whether the car is a stolen automobile.

Waddell Helps
Bert Waddell, who pleaded guilty Monday in Hempstead circuit court in connection with the robbery of the Blevins bank last May, came to Hope with Nevada officers and aided in the search.

Jesse Hutson of Hope, was an eye witness to the holdup, being a customer in the cafe at the time of the robbery, which occurred about 8 o'clock.

Insult Prosecutor
Irate Over Delay

Bankers' Auditor Can't Find Six Necessary Documents

CHICAGO.—(AP)—Harry Howard, auditor of Halsey Stuart & Co., nationally known investment bank, has been irate over the delay in government prosecutors Monday when he did not produce six documents subpoenaed in the Insull mail fraud case.

Under questioning by Special Assistant Attorney General Francis Harness, one of the prosecutors handling charges against Samuel Insull, Sr., and 16 business associates, Howard promised to make a new search for the papers but insisted he did not know where they were.

Insull in the six, as they were identified in court by Harness, was a memo bearing the initials "C. T. M.," those of Clarence T. MacNellie, one of the defendants, and sent to Halsey Stuart & Co. on March 3, 1930.

It said in part:

"Junior called me and stated that in view of the fact that so many people seem to be talking about selling Chicago stock he did not know just why he suggested that I make up some figures as to what our earnings would be for 1930."

Another of the missing letters was one from MacNellie, who was secretary-treasurer of Insull's Corporation Securities Company, to Harry L. Stuart of the investment banking house. Harness described it as one which "said in part":

"I read your telegram regarding the payment of dividends on common stock to Junior."

"Junior" is the nickname of Insull's son, Samuel Insull, Jr.

Cardinals Blast Way Past Detroit to Championship

St. Louis Overwhelms Tigers 11-0—Worst Rout Since 1905

THE GREAT "DIZZY"

Senior Dean Yields Six Hits—Detroit Uses Six Pitchers

The St. Louis Cardinals went on a hitting rampage Tuesday to win the seventh and deciding game of the world series over Detroit, 11 to 0, at Navin park, Detroit.

The Cardinals banged out a total of 17 hits, knocking five Tiger pitchers from the mound. They were Auker, Rowe, Hogsett, Bridges and Marberry. Crowder, who relieved Marberry in the eighth, finished on the mound for Detroit.

"Dizzy" Dean, on the mound for St. Louis, scored his second world series game, beating Detroit in the opener. Dean gave up six hits, three of which were in the eighth and ninth innings.

Paul Dean, younger brother of "Dizzy," won the other two games for St. Louis. The elder Dean's victory Tuesday was the only shutout of the series.

The Cardinals established a new record in scoring runs for a world series game. Not since 1905 has any team been beaten so decisively in an American National league classic.

The Cardinals' big inning was the third when the Red Birds scored seven runs in which Auker, Rowe and Hogsett were knocked from the box. Bridges went in and pitched until the seventh, giving up seven hits and three runs.

St. Louis scored two runs off Bridges in the sixth and the other in the seventh. Marberry and Crowder finishing the game by allowing two more runs.

Durocher opened the wild third inning by flying out. "Dizzy" Dean doubled, Martin beat out an infield hit. Rothrock walked, filling the bases. Frisch doubled, bringing in the three runs.

Medwick went out at first base on a bouncer for the second out, Frisch pulling up at third base. Collins singled, scoring Frisch. DeLancey doubled, scoring Collins. Ostrutsky walked. Durocher singled to fill the bases.

Dean, in his second appearance at the plate in the third inning, singled and DeLancey, Martin, with the bases still loaded, walked forcing in a run. And then Rothrock grounded out, ending the inning.

Medwick, Cardinal left fielder, was taken out of the game in the sixth inning when a shower of pop bottles was thrown at him in left field. He was not injured.

Medwick had tripled in the first part of the inning, scoring Martin, and general high tension among Detroit fans was the cause for the shower of bottles at his first baseman, led the hitting with four singles out of five times at bat. Durocher, shortstop, got three out of four including a triple.

2 Fights Loom in A. F. of L. Meeting

Building Trades and Brewery Men Torn by Legal Disputes

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif.—(AP)—One of the fights which created internal strife in the American Federation of Labor neared a climax Tuesday while another was headed for the floor of that organization's annual convention.

The battle in the building trades department over the reestablishment of three powerful unions, the carpenters, electrical workers, and bricklayers, which withdrew seven years ago, probably will be brought to the floor to be finally decided.

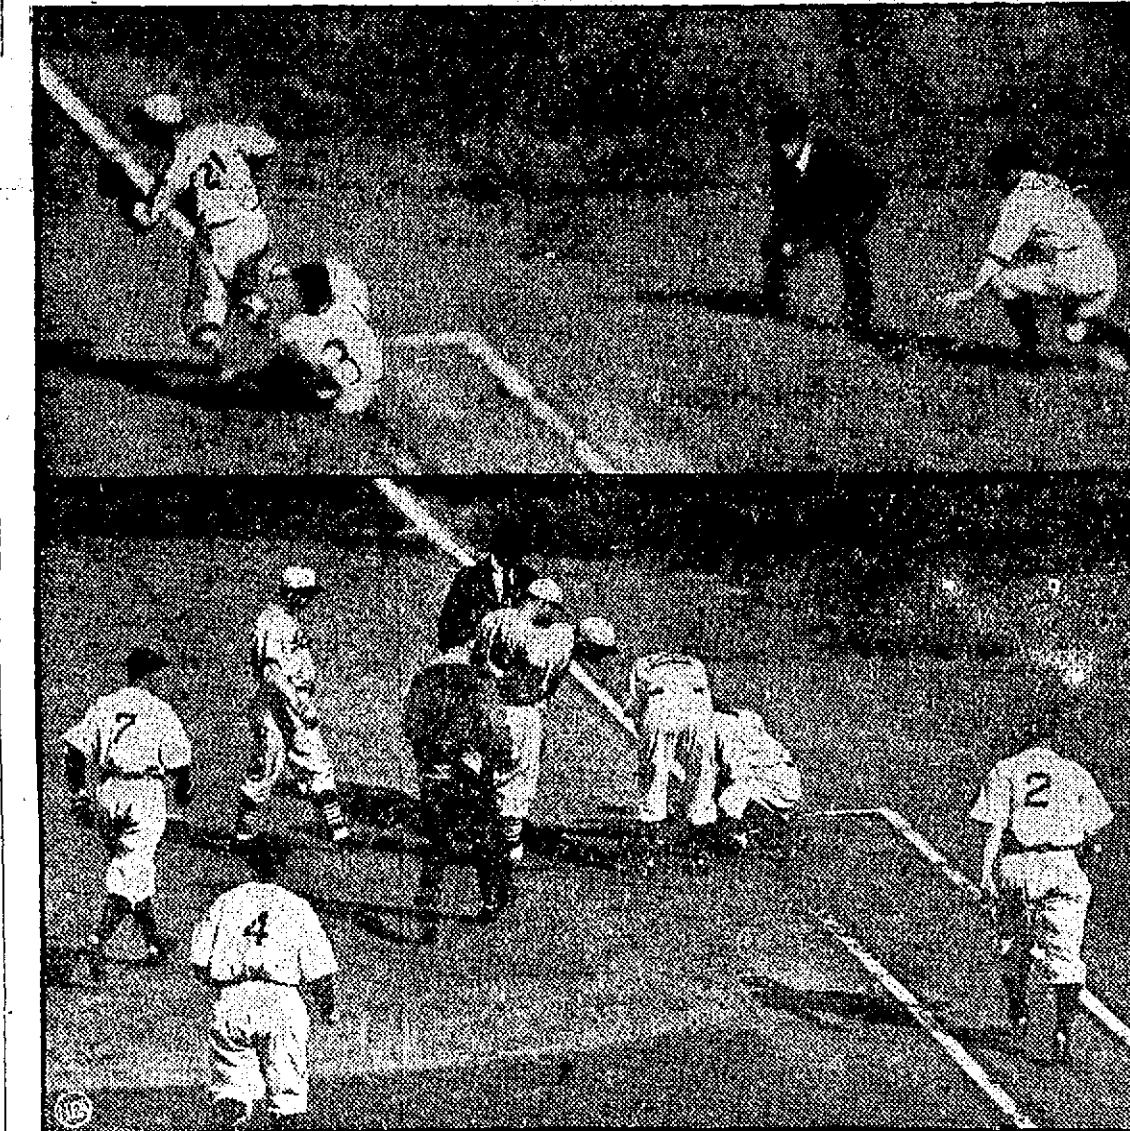

A jurisdictional fight scheduled to reach the convention floor Tuesday is being waged by the brewery-wagon drivers against entering the teamsters union.

Plans are being drawn for night sessions, possibly Wednesday and Thursday.

Wisconsin fur trade of three centuries ago showed profits of as much as 12,000 per cent, according to old records.

On the island of the Evangelists, off the western coast of South America, it rains 317 days in a year.

Cards Battle to Championship

TOP—Leo Durocher slides over the plate with the winning run in this picture, giving the Cardinals a 4-3 victory over the Tigers in the sixth game of the world series at Navin field, Detroit. Durocher had doubled in the seventh inning and scored from second on Paul Dean's single to right. Waiting for the throw is Catcher Mickey Cochrane, with Umpire Bill Klem calling the play. The fourth man in the picture is Pepper Martin.

CENTER—His infield single in the third inning of the sixth world series game was costly to Manager Mickey Cochrane of Detroit, whose knee was injured so badly that he went after the game to a hospital for treatment. Cochrane is shown, after he collided with Pitcher Paul Dean, who covered the bag for the throw from First Baseman Collins.

2 Negroes Killed in Accidents Here

Man Crushed on Railroad Right-of-Way—Woman Auto Crash Victim

Train and automobile accidents in Hempstead county over the week-end took a toll of two lives and left four others with injuries. All the casualties were negroes.

Watson Fynn, 55, died a few hours after falling from a train at Sprudel, west of Hope.

Found unconscious along the railroad right-of-way, he was picked up and rushed to Josephine hospital where he died with head injuries and a mangled left leg.

He failed to regain consciousness after the accident. He was buried Tuesday in Cave Hill cemetery.

To Ask Stock Law for Entire State

Roadside Development Group to Aid Highway Department

LITTLE ROCK — The Arkansas Council for Roadside Development, an agency set up to cooperate with the State Highway Department, the Arkansas Federation of Women's Clubs and the FERA in beautification of Arkansas highways, Monday decided to support the movement for a uniform stock law in Arkansas.

Efforts will be made to secure passage of a state law authorizing courts to fine owners of cattle that roam on state highways rather than to impound the cattle.

Mrs. F. J. Wolfman, representative of the state Federation of Women's Clubs, said, after the meeting of the council at the Hotel Marion.

New Jersey Moves for Murder Trial

Hauptmann Indicted for Actual Killing of Lindbergh Child

NEW YORK.—(AP)—Jersey justice moved swiftly Tuesday in preparation for its trial of Bruno Richard Hauptmann for the murder of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., less than 24 hours after the indictment of Hauptmann on a murder charge.

Officials of New Jersey and New York conferred Tuesday to discuss Hauptmann's extradition.

Although New Jersey officials declined to offer a prediction, the Bronx prosecutor, Samuel J. Foley, indicated that a decision as to when New Jersey's request for the extradition of the German would be considered would be reached soon. Foley said he would know his position definitely by Tuesday night.

NEW YORK.—(AP)—District Attorney Samuel J. Foley of the Bronx announced Tuesday that he will go to Trenton, N. J. late in the day to confer with Governor A. ### King Alexander Is Assassinated on Visit to France

Louis Barthou, Foreign Minister, Dies With Distinguished Guest

YUGO-SLAV FIRES

King Slain by One of His Own Subjects on a Foreign Shore

MARSEILLES, France.—(AP)—King Alexander, of Yugo-Slavia, and Louis Barthou, Foreign Minister of France, were assassinated Tuesday as the Yugo-Slav monarch came to France in an effort to improve Yugo-Slav-French relations.

Alexander and Barthou were shot while riding in an automobile—the first in the procession—soon after the Yugo-Slav king had landed.

The dying king was taken to a hospital where doctors made vain efforts to save his life.

One of the two assassins was shot and killed by police as he sought to escape; and the second, identified as Petris Kalaman, a Yugo-Slav, was wounded by a slash of a police saber.

Several persons in the crowd grouped around the king's automobile were wounded, apparently by the fusillade of assassins' bullets.

Approximately 20 shots were fired into the car.

The visit of Alexander to France was regarded as of great diplomatic importance to France and the Little Entente, of which Yugo-Slavia is a part.

Northern Spain Is Cut Off by Rebels

Bitter Fighting Causes Government to Close French Frontier

PI—Lead Spain—Northern Spain

COPYRIGHT ASSOCIATED PRESS
SAN SEBASTIAN, Spain.—(AP)—Northern Spain was completely shut off from Madrid as fierce fighting broke out early Tuesday and continued into the forenoon.

The authorities closed the French frontier and foreigners were not allowed to cross the border.

Telephonic communications with Madrid were broken, and the line to Paris is expected to be cut soon. Skirmishes between strikers and soldiers were frequent all along the coast.

Twenty Americans, employees of the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co., were marooned at Basauri, in northwestern Spain. Their factory was closed and food was running short.

Later the government premier, Alejandro Lerroux, began mopping up the remaining vestiges of rebellion in several provinces while estimates of the dead in the six-day revolt ranged from 500 to 1,000.

Attention at Madrid was centered on the reopening of congress, and the presentation of the budget.

The government took elaborate precautions to search the parliament buildings, stationing soldiers and guards throughout the building.

MADRID, Spain.—A military dictatorship for Spain was forecast in responsible congressional circles Monday night as nobles of the erstwhile monarchy joined 12,000 retired army officers in offering aid to the Right wing government of Premier Alejandro Lerroux.

A high ranking deputy whose name could not be revealed told the Associated Press "this uncertainty, if it continued, will end in military dictatorship."

"The government should take the most drastic steps to end the revolt since otherwise the dictatorship seems inevitable," he said.

A military dictatorship, that of Gen. Primo de Rivera, ruled Spain from 1923 to 1929 in conjunction with the monarchy.

As reports reaching the capital indicated the revolt's heavy fighting with its estimated thousands of casualties had hammered rebels into more sporadic activity today except in Northern Asturias, the Viscount of Cubas for the nobles offered the association's services of the republic. This they did, he said, "because in these moments we should think only of Spain, not of political beliefs."

The Clew of the Forgotten Murder

BY CARLETON KENDRAKE
©1934 NEA Service Inc.

CHARLES MORRIS, reporter for The Blade, telephoned the newspaper a report of the death of EDWARD SHILLINGBY, private detective, believed to have been killed by "TWINNATI" RICH LAMPSON, gangster. The same night an impostor pretending to be FRANK R. CATHAY of Riverview, wealthy and prominent, is brought in police headquarters on a charge of driving while intoxicated. With him is a girl who says she is MARY WHITE, his wife. Both are released.

MORRIS telephoned the news to his newspaper. Next day the real CATHAY calls on OYCE KENNEY, city editor of The Blade. CATHAY claims his reputation has been injured, and demands damages and a retraction.

DAN BLEEKER, junior publisher of The Blade, sends a letter to CATHAY to learn all he can about CATHAY. Next day CATHAY, attractive and confident, calls on BLEEKER at his office.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER V

MRS. CATHAY straightened. Her eyes ceased to smile and there was a swift rushing impetus to her words as she went on:

"I'm going to speak frankly, Mr. Bleeker, because I can see that you're a business man, and that you like plain, frank dealing."

"I understand from my attorney that when an influential citizen files a libel suit against a newspaper the newspaper immediately starts digging into his past, trying to find some old scandal or something that can be dug up. Is that true?"

Dan Bleeker met her gaze with a savoring in his black eyes. "Of course that's true," he said.

"We're publishing a newspaper. We work at high speed. We try to keep from making mistakes. Occasionally we make a mistake. That's all it is—just a mistake. If we find something we do everything we can to rectify that injury. We publish a retraction. If it's a very serious injury we file the fact away in our minds. We try to give the man a break some time. We try to make it up to him."

"If a man wants to fight us, then we fight him. You know and I know that nobody was ever damaged by a libel that was the result of an innocent mistake. That is there was never any damage done that couldn't be rectified by a retraction. We're always willing to publish a retraction when we're in the wrong. When a man wants to capitalize on our misfortune we fight."

"When we fight, we fight. We use every weapon that we can get our hands on."

"Do you," she asked, "think that it's fair to hit below the belt?"

"When a man starts fighting us we fight him," Bleeker said. "If he kicks at us, we kick at him. If he gouges in the clinches, we gouge. If he hits below the belt we hit below the belt."

"But," she said, "suppose you shouldn't be able to find anything derogatory to a man's character?"

"But," Bleeker snorted, "we're all of us human. You take a man who goes to a city and becomes a prominent citizen and he gets a lot of boot licking. The first thing he knows, he's trying to live up to it. He hasn't got guts enough to come out and be human and admit that he's a human being like the other folks. A certain type of small town likes to play up to that sort of a man."

"Those are the men who always have something they want hushed up. We're all of us just about the same. We've got just about so much good and just about so much bad in us."

"But my husband isn't like that," Mrs. Cathay said.

"Then Child Changed Father. Gradually the child ceased to be an 'object' for experiment with his father. He became a person. He could think and act and originate thought, and smart thought, too."

Without realizing what had happened, this man fell in love with his child. He became gentler with each month. He began to co-operate and encourage his son in his little hobbies and play. He ceased making fun of him and repeated the words of baby wisdom.

And then the miracle happened. It was the first time I had ever heard a man say it, much less an opinionated man.

Discovers Principle Himself

He said, "You know, I believe that the more you let children alone and allow them to work out their own little plans the better off they are. I don't have any patience with all this new-fangled stuff about guiding and nudging and so on. Just let them do things they want in their own way, unless it's something that they just have to be told."

Then for the first time I said, "That is all we want. It is all we are working for. You have just stated the sum total of all the new training as you call it. We just want to give nature a chance. Nature is smarter than we are. We ask that, and the examples of a good home, love and sensible parents. Not another thing."

"Don't lean backward and think Billy doesn't need a bit of shaping. Too bad, but he has to live in a world of people, not the woods, and he has to make some adjustments. But you're right, even here. Encourage his best qualities and keep him busy. There won't be much time or room then for the other."

DeAnn Pie Supper

A pie supper will be given Friday night at DeAnn High School, funds to be used in purchasing basket ball equipment. The public is invited.

BLEEKER'S retort was blunt.

"Then what're you here for?" he asked.

She made that quick, biting motion with her teeth and lower lip. "You're making it very hard for me," she said.

"You're making it hard for yourself," he told her. "Tell me what you've got to say and get it over with. It's these gushing preliminaries of yours that are making the trouble."

She stared at him and took a deep breath. The animation faded from her face. Her eyes ceased to sparkle at him. Her voice no longer gave a suggestion of well modulated intimacy but was cold and flat.

"Frank," she said, "is a fool. He had no business taking the stand he did. You publish a retraction; that's all there'll be to it."

"Who says so?" asked Dan Bleeker.

"I say so."

"And what does your husband say?" he asked.

"What my husband says doesn't count," she said. "I have Mr. Charles Fisher at the firm of Fisher, Barr and McCreedy in my suite at the Palace hotel. Mr. Fisher is my husband's intimate associate and attorney. He's been with him for years. He knows Frank better than almost anyone in the world. They were in business together in South Africa before Frank came to Riverview. In fact Frank brought Charles Fisher to Riverview, put up the funds which sent him through law school and financed his first few years while he was building up a practice. It's only one of numerous good turns that my husband has done."

"Mr. Fisher will give you what ever legal assurances you wish that the matter will be dropped."

"Does your husband know you're here?" asked Dan Bleeker.

HER face remained cool and expressionless. Her tone was blunt and final.

"No," she said.

"I want to talk with him," Bleeker said.

"It isn't necessary."

"I'm the judge of that."

"Won't you please come and talk with his lawyer?"

"Why should I?"

"It will save you a lot of disagreeable developments. It will save you from having a libel suit filed against you. It will perhaps save you thousands of dollars in legal fees if nothing else."

"And if I don't come?" asked Bleeker.

She laughed and the laugh was a mere, meaningless gesture, containing no mirth nor bitterness, as utterly meaningless as the goodby kiss of a faithless wife.

"Don't you understand," she said, "I'm trying to hand you an olive branch?"

"Why doesn't your attorney come over here?"

"Because," she said, "it wouldn't

Lumber Price Code Declared Illegal

Federal Judge Hands Down Injunction at Memphis Hearing

MEMPHIS, Tenn., (AP)—In an opinion which may effect other codes of major American industries, Judge Harry B. Anderson over the weekend handed down a decision in federal court holding price-fixing in the national lumber code illegal.

Judge Anderson held that "any price-fixing is the antithesis of competition, fair or otherwise, and there is nothing in the National Recovery act to show that such was the intention of congress." The very term "fair competition," Judge Anderson said in his opinion, "negatives any such construction."

"There is no mention in the National Recovery Act, itself, of price-fixing or price protection," he said, adding, however, that the act did authorize the various industries to compile codes of fair competition.

"From time to time, as witness the Lever act, legislative bodies have fixed maximum prices, with doubtful success," Judge Anderson said. "No legislative body has ever fixed a minimum price to my knowledge. To hold be the thing for him to do. It wouldn't look right. He prefers to remain in the hotel."

Dan Bleeker had the reputation of never failing in an instantaneous appraisal of character. He was known for his ability to reach lightning decisions and express them in explosive monosyllables.

"All right," he said. "I'll go."

He pushed back his chair, jerked open the door of a small closet pulled his hat well down on his head and struggled into an overcoat.

MRS. CATHAY'S face remained expressionless but the shoulders of her coat rose and fell as she heaved a deep sigh. Bleeker held the door open for her. She swept through the outer office, chin high in the air, eyes straight ahead. "Palace hotel?" Bleeker asked.

"The Palace hotel," she said. "I have a car with a chauffeur."

In silence they entered the huge elevator which swayed slowly down to the street level. Bleeker held the outer door of the office building open for Mrs. Cathay. A liveried chauffeur, standing beside a shiny black sedan. He opened the door with the snappy precision of a soldier on drill.

Bleeker's eyes flashed to the man's face. It was a handsome face and there was something ruthless about it, the arrogant pride of one who is only too conscious of his power. The expression of the face was in strange contrast to the marked military bearing.

that congress in the National Recovery Act has fixed a minimum price by implication is to carry judicial construction too far.

The judge granted a temporary injunction restraining William McClannahan, United States attorney for the Western district of Tennessee from causing the arrest, indictment or prosecution of any lumberman for violating the price-fixing or price protection clause of the lumber code applicable to the hardwood industry in West Tennessee.

2 Millions Asked in Ship Disaster

Damage Suits Pile Up on Operators of S. S. Morro Castle

NEW YORK—Damage suits totaling more than $2,000,000 hang over the Ward Line for loss of life and property in the Morro Castle disaster.

The 30-day legal period for filing notice of intention to sue ended Saturday with more than 100 such notices piling up in Clark's office. Three suits already have been filed in court for $50,000, $10,000 and an amount not stated. However, the federal court has ruled that further suits should not be filed until a decision on the line's request that its liability be limited to $14,000, the value of its interest in the vessel and cargo.

A long established principle of admiralty law prevents plaintiffs seeking damages by relying upon the Morro Castle's $4,000,000 hull insurance. Clark declared. He said that $2,000,000 of the insurance probably would go to the United States Shipping Board which holds a mortgage on the ship for that amount.

Mrs. Cathay stepped lightly to the running board. Bleeker didn't bother with the formality of assisting her to enter the car but, when she had entered, dropped to the cushions beside her. The chauffeur regarded Mrs. Cathay with a glance of steady inquiry. She raised her eyes to his and gave an almost imperceptible nod of the head. The chauffeur smiled, a smile which was a mere upturning of the lip corners. The eyes did not change expression. Then the chauffeur slammed the door shut, squirmed in beside the steering wheel, started the car, and without a word of audible instruction drove directly to the Palace hotel.

Crossing the lobby, Mrs. Cathay seemed agreeably conscious of the admiring eyes which followed her. She went directly to the elevators, entered the cage and stood very erect against the paneled side of the elevator. Bleeker entered, removed his hat. The cage door slammed shut.

"Eighth floor, please," said Mrs. Cathay, and the cage shot smoothly upward with Mrs. Cathay's eyes fixed rigidly upon the glistening panels of the elevator, her figure held stiff and motionless.

When the cage stopped Mrs. Cathay led the way, without a single backward glance, to room 894. She tapped lightly with her gloved knuckles.

Crime Conference Called for Nation

Federal and State Governments to Discuss Problem in December

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Science, law and the church have been called in by the government for a diagnosis of the national crime affliction.

Attorney General Cummings issued the call Sunday, announcing that a four-day conference here, beginning December 10, would have as its objective the integration of all forces of law and order to build a foundation for a more effective administration of justice.

President Roosevelt will deliver the opening address.

The sessions will bring together governors, state and federal officials and representatives of all phases of modern life that figure importantly in the crime problem.

not be filed until a decision on the line's request that its liability be limited to $14,000, the value of its interest in the vessel and cargo.

A long established principle of admiralty law prevents plaintiffs seeking damages by relying upon the Morro Castle's $4,000,000 hull insurance. Clark declared. He said that $2,000,000 of the insurance probably would go to the United States Shipping Board which holds a mortgage on the ship for that amount.

Mrs. Cathay stepped lightly to the running board. Bleeker didn't bother with the formality of assisting her to enter the car but, when she had entered, dropped to the cushions beside her. The chauffeur regarded Mrs. Cathay with a glance of steady inquiry. She raised her eyes to his and gave an almost imperceptible nod of the head. The chauffeur smiled, a smile which was a mere upturning of the lip corners. The eyes did not change expression. Then the chauffeur slammed the door shut, squirmed in beside the steering wheel, started the car, and without a word of audible instruction drove directly to the Palace hotel.

Crossing the lobby, Mrs. Cathay seemed agreeably conscious of the admiring eyes which followed her. She went directly to the elevators, entered the cage and stood very erect against the paneled side of the elevator. Bleeker entered, removed his hat. The cage door slammed shut.

"Eighth floor, please," said Mrs. Cathay, and the cage shot smoothly upward with Mrs. Cathay's eyes fixed rigidly upon the glistening panels of the elevator, her figure held stiff and motionless.

When the cage stopped Mrs. Cathay led the way, without a single backward glance, to room 894. She tapped lightly with her gloved knuckles.

Your Health

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

"Thermostat" in Brain Controls Body Heat

When germs invade your body, they release poisonous substances. These poisonous substances, it is believed, may affect a certain portion of the brain which acts as a human "thermostat" and controls heat of the body, or tissues damaged by the germs may produce the poisonous substances that affect this heat center of the brain.

As a result, you have fever.

Experiments have shown that injury to the brain of an animal, in one of its sections, is followed by a disturbance of the body's temperature, most often a high rise, such as occurs in fevers. Destruction of the brain tissue behind that portion which is felt to be the center for heat regulation is followed by an entire upset in the heat-regulating mechanism.

As further proof of the presence of this center in the brain, it has been established that hemorrhage into the brain at this point is usually accompanied by a fever.

The heat of the body is controlled by radiation of heat from its surface. A sudden dilation of the blood vessels on the surface of the body will radiate more heat and bring down the temperature.

The body also develops heat through the kind of food that is taken. Failure to handle sugars properly may result in development of increased heat for purpose of radiation.

In fevers the nervous control of the temperature is altered. A sick person is affected more easily by heat and cold than a healthy person.

Even when there is fever, the variations in temperature, which make it lower in the morning and higher in the evening, continue to take place, but at a higher level.

In certain kinds of diseases this is reversed, with higher temperature in the morning and lower in the evening.

Manner in which the regulating system works is indicated by the fact that heat production is increased from 200 to 300 per cent during muscular exercise and only from 20 to 30 per cent in fever.

Even when the heat production is increased 200 to 300 per cent, the body temperature will remain normal.

In certain cases of goiter, in which the metabolism of the body is tremendously increased, the heat production may be 80 per cent above normal, and yet the temperature of the body will be normal.

A fever or a rise in the temperature of the body spreads all its chemical reactions. It has been calculated that a patient with a temperature of 105 degrees has an increase of 50 per cent in the speed of his chemical reactions.

For this reason, persons who have fevers lose a great deal of weight and tend to waste away.

In typhoid fever, with a continuous high temperature, the loss of weight may amount to four or five pounds a week, even though the patient is at rest in bed.

Loss of weight which occurs represents the combination of loss of protein material from the body and the effects of loss of appetite and diminished intake of food.

During the fever there may be loss of water from the body. For this reason it is exceedingly important that plenty of water be given to those with fever, and that they have enough food to take the place of broken down tissue.

There has always been a great deal of argument as to whether a fever is beneficial. From present evidence, it seems likely that the human body is able to deal more effectively with infections by invading germs when the temperature rises.

For this reason, a fever is regarded to some extent as help to the body during infection. However, a very high temperature, such as 107 or 108 is harmful to the tissues and will actually break down and destroy the nerve cells.

A BOOK A DAY

BY BRUCE CATTON

A Gay Englishman Travels Over China
—"One's Company" is Travel Book of a New Kind

If you have read "Brazilian Adventure," you will remember Peter Fleming as an amiable young Englishman who writes a humorously new kind of travel book.

He has a new one on the market now. It's called "One's Company," and it tells how he took a roving commission for a London newspaper and went all through Manchukuo and China in quest of news.

Like his earlier book, it is a gay and irreverent affair, completely lacking the portentous solemnity with which most travelers in far places tell of their adventures.

Mr. Fleming survived a wreck of the Trans-Siberian Express, accompanied a Japanese column on a bandit-chasing expedition in Manchukuo, talked with Chiang Kaishek, poked around among the old temples of Jehol, went to lonely spots where Chinese Nationalist troops were holding the lines against Communism, traveled through the Chinese interior by airplane, motorbus, touring car, train, sampan and by foot-power—and, all in all, had a fine time, the spice of which he communicates deftly to the reader.

Unfortunately, this business of being flip and gay about things occasionally carries him too far. Once in a while he comes close to that familiar English-traveler attitude—"These outlandish foreigners don't do things as we English do them, and isn't it ridiculous of them?"

For the most part, though, his book is exceedingly readable, a pleasant and ingratiating account of travel in strange, far-off places.

Published by Scribner's, it sells for $2.75.

"New Fangled Training" Helps Child Find Self

He was a rough and ready young man and a father. He wasn't one to whom you could mention child training. He knew all about it. The "cranks" who were turning the world upside down trying to make ninnies of children simply disgusted him.

When the baby was born he rumped him first thing to make him tough. When he was a year old, dad told him to shut up when he cried. When he was two his dad was at the rough-hewing with a vengeance, or thought he was. He had a theory that he could put the alloy of his own force and courage into the softer metal of the child by hammering.

One wouldn't have dared to tell him that buried deep in the baby's nature was his own alloy hardening that nature would bring out in time, making a far better mixture than a top layer that wasn't the real thing at all and would probably slough off in the wear and tear of life.

Then Child Changed Father. Gradually the child ceased to be an "object" for experiment with his father. He became a person. He could think and act and originate thought, and smart thought, too.

Without realizing what had happened, this man fell in love with his child. He became gentler with each month. He began to co-operate and encourage his son in his little hobbies and play. He ceased making fun of him and repeated the words of baby wisdom.

And then the miracle happened. It was the first time I had ever heard a man say it, much less an opinionated man.

Discovers Principle Himself

He said, "You know, I believe that the more you let children alone and allow them to work out their own little plans the better off they are. I don't have any patience with all this new-fangled stuff about guiding and nudging and so on. Just let them do things they want in their own way, unless it's something that they just have to be told."

Then for the first time I said, "That is all we want. It is all we are working for. You have just stated the sum total of all the new training as you call it. We just want to give nature a chance. Nature is smarter than we are. We ask that, and the examples of a good home, love and sensible parents. Not another thing."

"Don't lean backward and think Billy doesn't need a bit of shaping. Too bad, but he has to live in a world of people, not the woods, and he has to make some adjustments. But you're right, even here. Encourage his best qualities and keep him busy. There won't be much time or room then for the other."

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By Alicia Hart

Oily Skins Need Soap Every Day

"Oily skins require just as careful attention as dry ones," a well known skin specialist declared the other day.

"Most women with dry complexions use rich creams and lotions to keep their skins smooth and soft. Yet a good many girls with oily conditions use the wrong preparations or, worse still, use none, trusting that face powder will absorb the oil and conceal the defects. It won't, of course. And even if it did, temporarily, the oily condition would still exist and continue to get worse."

That's the insidious thing about excess oil. By powdering frequently, you may be able to conceal it. But even though you manage to fool others for a time, the day will come when no amount of powder will cover up large pores, often caused by an excessive flow of oil, blackheads and a permanent shininess. Therefore, let me say again, that if you have any sort of complexion ailment you should take immediate steps to eliminate—not hide—the flaws.

Soap and water are the best cosmetic friends of an oily skin. If you use cleansing cream, apply it before, not after, a thorough washing with warm soap suds. Rinse several times with ice cold water. Then use a mild astringent. Repeat the routine in the morning.

If, during the day, you notice that oil shows through your makeup, wash again with soap and water, put on an astringent and apply fresh makeup. You need a light-textured powder, you know, and greaseless foundation cream.

Life is too short for spite and revenge—

Meet slights with a smile and a song.
This sad world with all its repining,
Its bitterness, sorrow and tears,

To sweeten the sin-stained years.
Yes, life is too short to be hateful,
Or for wounding the hearts that we meet;

Municipal Plant Issue at Memphis

Power Company's Objection to Nov. 6th Election Overruled

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—(P)—The Memphis Power & Light Company Monday formally petitioned the City Commission to defer an election, scheduled for November 6 at which citizens would vote on a proposed $9,000,000 bond issue, with which to build or buy a distributing system for TVA power.

The commission replied immediately that "we believe that the people are ready to vote," and announced that an ordinance authorizing the bond vote will be considered on third and final reading Tuesday.

R. W. Husselman, employed by the city to survey the power situation here, recently recommended TVA power for Memphis. It was following his report that the City Commission decided on the bond issue.

The power company's protest asked for a delay in the voting on the ground that only one side of the question had been made public.

"We should be given a chance to make an offer which will obviate the necessity of the city undertaking a hazardous experiment, the success of which will be more doubtful, and which will give to Memphis all the advantages it could obtain were the proposed undertaking bound to succeed," the power firm's petition said.

The company's plans were not detailed.

Electricity on Farm

WILSON DAM, Ala.—(P)—Bright electric bulbs had replaced oil lamps in many farm and village homes along a 70-mile Tennessee Valley Authority rural electrification line in Lauderdale county Monday night. For the first time in history many farmers read in their own homes under electric lights instead of the flickering light of kerosene. In the area 300 farm and 100 village residents have indicated they will buy power from the TVA.

Power from the gigantic Wilson dam hydro-electric plant was turned on Sunday. The rural line serves a section never before given an opportunity to obtain electric service.

Only in the Asturias mining district of Mieres did organized opposition continue, dispatches filtering through wrecked communications system indicated, while rebels elsewhere had been driven underground or, in desperation, to sniping and disorders.

What would be the toll of the artillery bombardment of Gijon and Oviedo, two Northern cities recaptured Monday from the rebels, none in Madrid knew. Estimates however, that took into account the four days of bitter fighting, use of artillery and aerial bombs, placed the dead and wounded in the thousands.

Army Truck Blown

Fraud Charged to Ex-Mayor of N. Y.

Jimmy Walker Accused of Collusion in Big Land Transaction

BROOKLYN, N. Y.—(P)—Former Mayor James J. Walker, Arthur J. W. Hilley, corporation counsel for the city under Walker's administration; Warren Leslie, president of the Jamaica Water Supply company, and Charles J. Hehrbas was accused of "fraud and collusion" in an affidavit filed before Supreme Court Justice Edward Byrne, Brooklyn, Monday.

The charges were signed by City Controller Joseph D. McGoldrick in an action seeking to set aside an award of $2,569,303 granted to Leslie for a parcel of land on Bergen Beach, Brooklyn, made in 1930 by Supreme Court Justice James A. Duane.

Corporation Counsel Paul Windel requested that the award be set aside because of alleged neglect of duty on the part of Hilley.

An affidavit charged that after Walker took office he signed a quit claim to property at the beach in favor of the Lussigny Realty Corporation which was controlled by Leslie, and that the quit claim was given in consideration of $1,025,000 on February 1, 1926.

Three days later Leslie sold part of the land for $700,000 and the city took title to the remainder after condemnation proceedings for $2,500,000, it was set forth.

The affidavit also said that Hilley as lawyer for the city, and Hehrbas, Leslie's lawyer, made an agreement before the condemnation proceedings that the quit claim would not be brought in as evidence during the action.

Hauptmann Indicted

FLEMINGTON, N. J.—(P)—Bruno Richard Hauptmann was indicted for the kidnaping of Baby Charles A. Lindbergh by the Hunterdon county grand jury Monday.

Swiftly, with Colonel Lindbergh among the witnesses, the state of New Jersey laid down the evidence charging to the stolid, tight-lipped German alien the most sensational crime in modern annals.

The indictment was voted but a few minutes after the last witness was heard. In all, the jury session lasted only four hours and 42 minutes.

Attorney General David T. Wilentz said extradition of Hauptmann to New Jersey may be determined on Tuesday.

"I can't say now when extradition will take place," the attorney general said. "Maybe I will tomorrow. I mean, by that, I'll tell you tomorrow—not that he will be extradited tomorrow."

Wilentz left immediately after the indictment was returned for Trenton where he conferred with Gov. A. Harry Moore. He declined to say whether he had discussed extradition with the governor or when he would move against the Bronx prisoner.

Officials Will Confer

He disclosed, however, that he was arranging for Tuesday a conference with District Attorney Samuel J. Foley of Bronx county, probably at Trenton, when it was expected that they will agree on a program for handling Hauptmann's case.

Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, head of the New Jersey state police, also disclosed at Trenton that Colonel Lindbergh had "positively identified Hauptmann's voice as that which he heard in the ransom negotiations in a Bronx cemetery."

The state police superintendent made the statement in response to questions regarding identification of Hauptmann but declined to divulge whether Colonel Lindbergh's testimony before the grand jury was on this point.

WALNUT RIDGE, Ark.—Charges of extortion and bribery brought against Prosecuting Attorney Roy Richardson were being investigated by the grand jury here Monday.

J. N. Heiskell, Gazette Editor, Urges Case for Consolidation

FORT SMITH.—(P)—The 10th annual convention of the Arkansas Real Estate association in session here late Monday prepared a resolution advocating that boundaries of counties be realigned to form larger, stronger, and more economical units of local government. The resolution probably will be voted on, along with others Tuesday.

Preparation of the measure followed a discussion by J. N. Heiskell, editor of the Arkansas Gazette.

"Movements to consolidate counties meet opposition inspired by community interests and selfish motives of officeholders," he added.

"It is very encouraging," Mr. Heiskell said, "to know that Arkansas is in advance of some other states. We are not afflicted with township governments, which would make consolidation of county governments doubly difficult."

County Judge R. A. Cook of Pulaski county told the delegates of economies effected in his county, saying that this is due in part to the elimination from pay rolls of political appointees who contribute nothing worth while to the offices in which they were "employed." He criticized "county official associations" which advocate measures conflicting with the interests of taxpayers. The Arkansas Sheriffs Association and the County Judges Association were mentioned in this respect.

"The fee system is and always will be a blow to taxpayers," Judge Cook added.

made public, but it is said that they are in connection with alleged promises to nolle prosequere indictments or to recommend suspended sentences.

Richardson was elected prosecuting attorney in 1932 over a field of five, and was re-nominated without opposition August 14. He was elected state senator in 1924 and served two terms in the upper House. He had no comment to make on the developments other than that he would have a statement when the investigation was completed and action taken.

Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.

Radical Strike of Seaman Is Planned

Left Group to Defy International Union—Ignored by Ship Lines

NEW YORK (AP)—A "militant strike" designed to call out the crews of American ships sailing out of all North Atlantic and Gulf ports, was voted Sunday at a mass meeting of the Marine Workers Industrial Union.

Hayes Jones, editor of the Marine Workers Voice, who presided, said about 35,000 men would be affected. Three hundred persons attended the meeting.

The Marine Workers Industrial Union, a Left-wing organization, has expressed dissatisfaction over the settlement of a threatened strike of the International Seamen's Union, an American Federation of Labor affiliate.

The M. W. I. U. demands a basic rate scale of $75 a month, an eight-hour day, a 33 per cent increase in the manning of vessels, a ship's committee on every vessel to represent the seamen, and the right to join any union without prejudice. Its demands were submitted to American ship owners September 28, Jones said, adding that the owners would not deal with the union.

The Marine Workers Union is in direct competition with the International Seamen's Union, with which the owners of 37 ship lines have been arbitrating their differences through Lloyd Garrison of the National Regional Labor Board. They have questioned the right of the M. W. I. U. to speak for an appreciable number of seamen.

Roy B. Hudson, national secretary of the union, denied that the marine workers had Communist leadership or that the Communist party would have any voice in directing the proposed strike.
